Volunteers invited to help with Chinook research at Salmon River Hatchery

Sept. 17, 2019

SALEM, Ore. – ODFW is looking for volunteers to help with the fall Chinook program at Salmon River Hatchery. Shifts are now available and may continue into November.

Visit <https://midcoaststep.ivolunteer.com> for more information and to sign-up for a volunteer shift.

Salmon River Hatchery releases 200,000 adipose-marked and coded wire-tagged fall Chinook salmon smolts each year to support a popular in-river recreational fishery, supplement ocean recreational and commercial fisheries, and provide information for the Pacific Salmon Treaty negotiations that can have a significant effect on Oregon's Chinook salmon populations.

Salmon River Hatchery fall Chinook are used as an indicator stock to estimate harvest rates for all fall Chinook on the North Oregon coast. The recovery of these fish in the commercial and sport fisheries in Alaska, British Columbia, Washington and Oregon, along with recoveries at the hatchery and on the spawning grounds, are used to represent the harvest rate of Oregon's coastal fall Chinook in these fisheries.

Volunteers will learn how to net, handle, and identify salmonid species, process fish for food share programs, and assist with other hatchery operations as needed.

For questions, contact Christine Clapp at christine.m.clapp@state.or.us or (541) 961-6386. Hatchery supervisor Michelle Viss can be reached at (541) 994-8606.

Salmon River Hatchery is located at 575 N. North Bank Rd. Otis, Oregon.

Volunteers in action

A Steelheader thank you to Jim Cathcart and Steve Rothenbucher who volunteered to help the City of Fairview at a recent Salish Ponds fishing event. As evidenced in the email below, they represented themselves and the Sandy River Chapter of the NW Steelheaders well!

Subject: Thank you!

Hi PRAC, Steelheaders, and ODF&W,

Thank you for all of your help planning and running the youth fishing day on Saturday. The goal of introducing youth to local open spaces and teaching them how to fish was achieved. We had 24 participants with 2 kids catching their first fish.

While we had to make adjustments to the schedule I think the event came together well in the end. See my summary notes for next year and a few photos from the event.

Thank you,
